

Long Screams All the Way to Mental Hospital

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Horsely screaming curses, Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana battled all the way with sheriff's deputies Thursday night as they hauled him to a mental hospital for the second time in three weeks.

"God damn it, God damn it, God damn it," the rumpaled and sweating governor bellowed. "Hell, I'm not going to get in there," he yelled when they tugged him into a sheriff's car to take him to southeast Louisiana State Hospital at Mandeville, 30 miles to the east.

The 63-year-old governor swung a roundhouse right at a deputy but missed.

"You-all look you-all look," he shouted.

Dr. Chester Williams, coroner of East Baton Rouge Parish, said Gov. Long had suffered from delusions of persecution. The megalomaniac was paranoid schizophrenic.

But Long remained unconvinced that he needed hospital treatment. "I don't feel I need to be hospitalized," Long told physicians at the Mandeville institution.

Dr. Charles Belcher, acting superintendent of Southeast, indicated Thursday night in an interview with The Associated Press that Long must remain in his hospital at least 30 days.

This latest chapter in the weird and tragic story of Earl K. Long pitched Louisiana politicians into additional jitters. Who is to take over the duties of governor?

Lt. Gov. L. B. Leavelle, Jr., is supposed, as he did when members of the Long family flew a drugged and unwilling governor May 30 to a psychiatric clinic at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, Tex. However, nothing is certain.

In his New Orleans hotel, the lieutenant governor hastily declined to say one word on the situation.

"Oh, no, I have nothing to say. I have no comment," he said as he continued on Page Three

Cost of Living Goes Up to a New Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs hit a new peak in May. Small rises in prices for practically all types of consumer goods lifted the Labor Department's cost index one-tenth of one percent from the April level.

At 124 per cent of the 1947-48 base period, the index was the highest it has ever reached.

And the prospect is for a further small increase during the summer months.

In reporting the figures today, the Labor Department said spendable earnings of factory workers, meaning their pay after federal tax deductions, also hit a record.

The average for the factory worker heading a family of four was $91.03 a week. It was 73.49 for the single factory worker.

These earnings, each, were 35 cents higher than the record set in April.

The department said the rise in spendable earnings was due both to longer working hours and higher pay rates.

The buying power of the worker is up about 9 per cent from a year ago because living costs have changed very little since then.

H. E. Riley, price chief for the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the living cost index has been moving within an extremely narrow range for a year.

May index was only three-tenths of one per cent above the May 1958 level.

But Riley said that while he would call the level of living costs stable, the index probably will continue to rise during the summer months if food costs increase as they usually do up until the fall harvest.

In May, fractional increases were recorded for food, housing, clothing, medical care and personal care.

Approximately 100,000 aircraft workers will get a penny an hour pay boost based on the May index.

The workers are employed at the Fairchild, Hughes, Martin and North American aircraft manufacturing companies. Their labor contracts provide for a semi-annual living cost adjustment.

Riley said the May increase was nothing more than a seasonal change. He noted that living costs declined only once between April and May since 1947.

Food prices rose in May by a tenth of one per cent. They had declined in eight of the nine previous months.

Kraft Workers Will Get a Wage Increase

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—About 13,000 employees in International Paper Co.'s Southern Kraft Division mills will receive wage boosts under a new two-year labor contract.

The contract was signed yesterday by the company and representatives of the United Paper Makers and Paper Workers, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The agreement, which normally sets the pattern for the rest of the paper industry in the South, covers International Paper Co. mills at Mobile, Panama City, Fla.; Moss Point and Natchez, Miss.; Camden and Pine Bluff, Ark.; Springfield and Bastrop, La.; and Georgetown, S.C.

It calls for a 3 per cent general increase, with a 7 cent per hour minimum boost, for the first year. A 4 per cent increase with an 8 cent an hour minimum is provided for the second year. A company spokesman said the hourly base rate was increased from $1.77 to $1.84 the first year.

The contract also includes a seventh paid holiday on Dec. 26, a company agreement to pay part of the cost of dependents' hospitalization and surgical benefits; a funeral leave and jury duty clause; and some changes in job adjustments.

Effective last June 1, employees with 10 years of service will receive three weeks vacation. Previously, three weeks vacation came after 15 years.

LITTLE ROCK — The State Highway Commission was requested June 17 to intervene in a change of location for the proposed U. S. Engineer's access road to Millwood Dam and to relocate the interchange now planned at Fulton on Interstate 30.

The access road, as proposed by the Corps of Engineers, is to connect Highway 355 at Saratoga. The delegation asked that the access road be located south of Saratoga, which in their opinion, would shorten the route to the Dam by several miles and would better serve the influx of people expected in the area after completion of the Dam.

The interchange relocation, as outlined by V. W. Foster, would preclude a possible division of the town of Fulton since its natural growth is to the northeast and would provide easier access to potential industrial sites. The interchange, as proposed by the State, would be located south of Fulton and serve Highway 355 traffic as well as give access to and from U. S. Highway 87.

Ward Goodman, chief engineer, explained to the group that the access road to the Dam would be built and paid for by the Corps of Engineers and final decision as to its location would rest with them. He said relocation of the interchange might be justified.

Harry Parkin, vice chairman of the Commission, said the requests would be studied and a report of the findings be made within the next few weeks.

Members of the delegation were: Mr. Foster, G. W. Peck, B. N. Holt and County Judge U. C. Garrett of Hope; E. C. Cobb, Jim Shaver, County Judge Ray Sikes and Mayor Jack Crawford of Ashdown.

School Opening Possible by Fall L. R.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Displaced Little Rock high school students today faced the possibility of a homecoming this fall.

Authorities generally agreed that the way to reopening four closed high schools was paved yesterday when a three-judge federal court struck down a state law Gov. Orval E. Faubus invoked to keep the schools shut throughout the 1958-59 academic year.

And there was general agreement, too, that the schools would operate under a token plan of integration approved by the federal courts.

Everett Tucker Jr., president of the Little Rock School Board, said the board felt it was bound by a previous court order to operate the schools under the integration plan if the school closing law was declared invalid.

The board met with its attorneys for two hours last night. "We tossed around ideas on procedure for getting the schools open this fall," Tucker said. "But we didn't decide anything. This will take a bit of consideration."

Tucker said all five board members were in agreement that the schools should be opened, even if it meant "token integration," under the integration plan, which was thwarted by Faubus' school closing order, seven Negroes were eligible to attend Central High, largest of the four high schools.

Faubus took the court decision calmly. He said it was no surprise but came sooner than he expected. "The governor said he would not make a decision on whether to appeal the ruling until he had consulted with his attorneys."

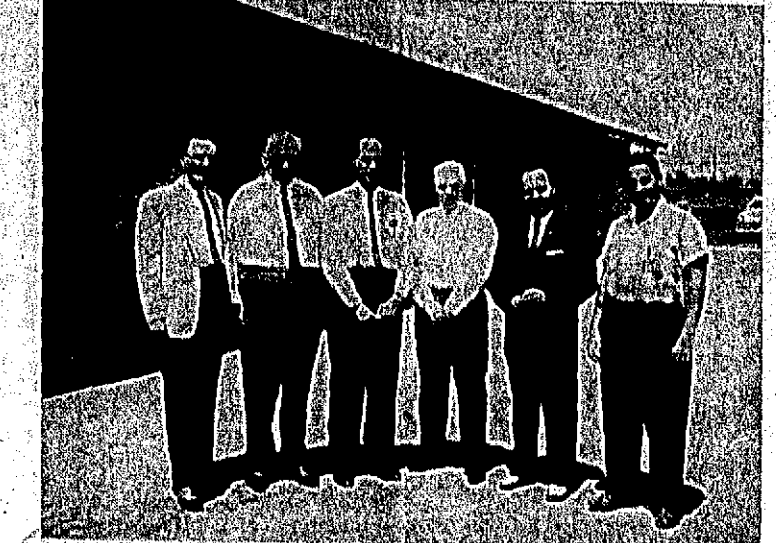

The court also ruled out a companion act to the school closing law which provided for transfer of funds from closed schools to other schools where displaced students enrolled. Both acts were passed at a 1954 special legislative session called to deal with school integration problems.

The 1959 Legislature passed a substitute measure for the fund transfer law. Faubus indicated it could be used to "take the edge off the situation." The law permits students to voluntarily withdraw from integrated schools and draw their pro-rata share of school funds for use at a segregated institution.

Asked if he had further plans for dealing with the school situation, Faubus said, "The school district now is in charge."

Tucker said this way: "The decision on operating the schools district where it properly belongs. Tucker and I present board members were opposed by Faubus, both when they sought office and in a recent recall election when three Faubus-backed segregationists were ousted from the board for firing teachers. The other two members and a third man, who later resigned, were appointed to replace the segregationists."

Rest Station Opens Near Hope

MIGRATORY LABOR rest station on Highway 67, just west of Hope, was formally opened yesterday by (left to right) Garland Medders, City Manager; J. J. Bryson, Prescott, State President of Arkansas Farmers Union; Teddy Jones, Manager of local office of Employment Security Division; B. N. Holt; C. C. Secretary; George Frazier, Mayor and Barney Travis, ESD station operator.

Local ESD in Charge of Labor Station

The Farm Labor Information Station located one-half mile west of the Hope city limits on Hwy. 67 began operations June 8 according to Teddy Jones, Manager, of the Arkansas Employment Security Division local office. Since the opening date over 350 migratory workers have registered and stopped at the station.

Continuous rains during last week caused cancellation of formal opening ceremonies. Formalities of opening were concluded today when the above picture of the Information Station and Rest Camp was made by Star photographer Pod Rogers.

The Information Station is located on a city owned site, and Mr. Jones said that it was only through the cooperation of Hope city officials that the station was located in Hope. Hope city officials entered into a long term rental lease agreement between the Arkansas Employment Security Division and the City. Those instrumental in working out the agreement were Mayor George Frazier, City Manager, Garland Medders, and the City Board of Directors.

A. M. Clark, District Maintenance Superintendent of the Hope District of the Arkansas Highway Department, cooperated by constructing approaches to the site.

The Information Station should be a definite asset to our city from March 1 to November 30 of each year. It is anticipated that between 5,000 and 8,000 workers will stop at the station before the November 30 closing date.

The operation will be under the direction and supervision of Mr. Jones and the Hope local office of the Employment Security Division. A full time employment service employee, Barney Travis, has been transferred from the Malvern Employment Security Division office to Hope and will run the station. He will live in an Employment Security Division agency owned trailer at the site and is available for duty at all hours.

Cost of the project was $14,000 which includes construction, cost of trailer, equipment, supplies and all expenses incident to getting it into operation. Mr. Jones said that the entire cost of the Information Station was paid for from Federal funds from the U. S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Employment Security. The station is an affiliate of the United States Employment Service and is one of seven recently constructed in strategic locations throughout the U. S. by the Federal Bureau in efforts to assist the migratory labor movement. The Farm Placement Service program is a permanent continuing one.

Mr. Jones indicated that the Hope station would primarily serve farm workers on the move from Texas to the Central and Great Lakes region. He stressed particularly that the station was provided to serve only citizens of the United States.

It is not a stopping place or rest stop for Mexican Nationals as has been talked in some circles. The Mexican National program is handled under individual grower or farm association contract set up out of a Bracero Reception Center at Eagle Pass. These Nationals are not even allowed to stop at the Hope station as state and federal regulations prohibit stop over by Nationals at the Hope Information center.

The Hope Information Station will provide free public service and farm job data for citizen workers, their families, crews, and migratory workers that are being sent by the Farm Placement Service from one section or state to another to work. Last week the station station sent cotton pickers to Little Rock and Elytheville; strawberry pickers to Michigan; and tomato workers to Indiana and

Senate Rejects Appointment of Lewis L. Strauss

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a dramatic 49-46 vote early today, the Senate rejected President Eisenhower's nomination of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce.

The tense roll call in the packed Senate chamber capped a battle in which Eisenhower had put his own prestige at stake with all-out support for Strauss.

Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was the first Cabinet nominee to be rejected by the Senate since 1925, when Calvin Coolidge's choice of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general was turned down. Strauss became the eighth Cabinet nominee to be rejected in all the country's history.

When the showdown came, shortly after midnight, 31 Republicans and 16 Democrats and two Independents voted. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and William Langer of North Dakota, Senate Democratic leaders, Lynn B. Johnson of Texas, voted against Strauss, as did most other senators who had not disclosed their stand in advance of the roll call.

Named as defendants are: The Chandler & Price Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, which makes printing presses and paper cutters; Poldevin Machine Co. of Teaneck, N.J., manufacturer of bag-making, glueing, coating and in-belling machinery.

Chicago Co. of Chicago, maker of wire-stitching machines and stitching wire; American Smelting & Refining Co. of New York City, whose Federal Metals Division manufactures and sells typemetal; J. M. Huber Corp. of Hillsdale, N.J., ink manufacturer; Western Newspaper Union of New York City which operates nationally as a reseller of printing machinery, equipment and supplies.

Western Newspaper Union is named in two of the five indictments returned. It is charged with conspiring with the Huber Corp. to fix prices at which printing ink is sold to ultimate users, and also with combining with American Smelting to maintain the prices at which typemetal is sold to users. Each of the other defendants is named in only one of the indictments.

Another Suit Attacks Act 10 Validity

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Another suit attacking the validity of the state teacher affidavit law was filed today in Pulaski Chancery Court.

The suit by Ernest T. Gephardt, a Little Rock Central High School printing instructor, names as defendants members of the School Board Supl. Terrill Powell and state Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett.

Gephardt asks an injunction banning enforcement of the act, which requires teachers to list organizations with which they have been affiliated over the past five years.

A similar suit was filed earlier by Max Carr, a University of Arkansas professor. An attorney said the suits would be consolidated for hearing.

Gephardt was one of six Little Rock teachers who refused to sign the affidavits. The School Board set a June 25 deadline for having affidavits signed.

Hearing on Carr's suit set for June 26.

Gephardt's suit says he signed a statement that he never belonged to a subversive organization but the other information sought was personal and its release was unconstitutional.

Several days before Carr's suit was filed, a three-judge federal court upheld the teacher affidavit law in a suit filed by B. T. Shelton, Little Rock Negro teacher.

Carr's suit and the one filed today by Gephardt challenge legality of the act on grounds different from that raised in the federal case.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House voted today to raise the ceiling on the national debt to a new penultimate high of 265 billion dollars.

Described as a temporary ceiling, it is to be effective until June 30, 1960.

The vote came after angry blame-laying debate during which House leaders warned the debt increase was a necessity if the government is to pay the bills falling due July 1.

Price Fixing Charges Filed by the U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers today announced return of an antitrust indictment charging six major corporations with illegal price fixing in the printing machinery field and related equipment and supplies industries.

The indictments, voted by a federal grand jury in New York City, allege the companies have maintained prices of their products at artificial and noncompetitive levels.

This speech assailed the West for refusing to accept Soviet terms. It was considered by the Western ministers to lay down a tough Soviet line, a refusal to accept the latest Western proposals even as a basis for negotiation.

After receiving the twice delayed Soviet proposition — it had been expected first on Wednesday — U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville left the four-owner meeting at Gromyko's villa and reassembled at Couve de Murville's headquarters. West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano joined them.

A British delegation spokesman said Gromyko advanced new proposals for an interim Berlin arrangement but these have given "no new hope" to the West for a solution.

Mr. Gromyko has not accepted the Western proposals even as a basis for discussion, the British spokesman said.

"Furthermore, the Soviet position as put forward this afternoon by Mr. Gromyko, coupled with Mr. Khrushchev's speech has given us no new hope to the Western delegations for a solution."

In Moscow, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev declared in a speech at the Kremlin that the allied occupation of West Berlin must end. The British statement, echoed by other Western delegations, was issued during an intermission between two secret sessions of the Big Four foreign ministers.

It immediately posed the likelihood that U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville would raise with Gromyko the question of discussing the conference.

GENEVA (AP)—Andrei A. Gromyko presented new Soviet proposals at the Big Four meeting today and the Western foreign ministers went into a huddle to consider them.

The sharp tone of Khrushchev's speech accorded with Western expectations heavy that Gromyko would come up with an unacceptable counterproposal.

Negro Visiting Day at Local Station Thurs.

The annual Negro visiting day at the University of Arkansas' Southwest Branch Experiment Station at Hope will be held next Thursday, June 25, according to Cecil M. Bittle, assistant director in charge of the station.

The program, which will begin at 9:30, will be given by members of the Agricultural Experiment Station and Agricultural Extension Service staffs.

Mr. Bittle is asking visitors to proceed to Recreational Hall at the lake before unloading. The day's program will be held in that area.

The group will start the day with a tour of the station. County Extension agents will tour the station with their groups and explain research experiments underway, Mr. Bittle said.

Special demonstrations will also be given in the morning. J. K. Ball, Extension horticulturist, will talk about landscaping; conservation will be covered by George Purvis, assistant educational director with the State Game and Fish commission; and Dr. L. O. Warren, associate entomologist with the University of Arkansas, will discuss beekeeping.

After lunch, which may be purchased on the station grounds, the invocation will be led by the Rev. M. S. Riley, pastor of Rising Star Baptist Church at Hope. Youth talent numbers will follow.

Principal speaker for the day will be Dr. Lawrence A. Davis, president of A. M. & N. College at Pine Bluff.

Closing remarks will be given by T. R. Betton, Negro agricultural agent, and by Mr. Bittle.

West Won't Go Along Despite Soviet Threat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union renewed today its demand for a deadline on the Allied occupation of West Berlin but offered to extend the time to 18 months instead of a year.

The Western powers have repeatedly rejected the deadline proposal and the reopening of the issue by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko now could result in a quick break-off of the Big Four conference here.

In a hectic afternoon as the conference reached its climax, Gromyko met for 35 minutes with the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France, and presented a new set of Soviet proposals, reported to parallel, at least in part, a policy speech in Moscow earlier in the day by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers looked in disagreement over a stopgap status for Berlin, have agreed to recess until July 13, Western sources said tonight.

The arrangement was made at a secret session at the headquarters of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The statesmen arranged also to have a preliminary session of their conference Saturday, at which, presumably, the current phase of their talks will be wound up.

Left hanging in the air, meanwhile, was the fate of rival Russian and Western plans for a Berlin solution.

This speech assailed the West for refusing to accept Soviet terms. It was considered by the Western ministers to lay down a tough Soviet line, a refusal to accept the latest Western proposals even as a basis for negotiation.

Communists Meet Trouble in India

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

In Trivandrum, capital of Kerala state in southernmost India, a few days ago a woman in a cotton sari lay face down in the dust across the roadway leading to a tax collector's office.

Around her, a group of men carrying Congress and Socialist Party flags shouted slogans demanding that the Communist Party get out.

Since it would have been a violation of Indian custom for police to have touched a woman, she stayed there for two hours until policewomen arrived to lead her peacefully away.

It was not an isolated incident. Throughout Kerala opponents of the Communist regime were organized in a Gandhi-like campaign of non-violence to drive the Communists from office. But inevitably there was violence and for the central government headed by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru it posed an aching problem which had no place in Nehru's favored policy of peaceful co-existence with the Reds.

Kerala came into existence as a state in the fall of 1956, emerging from its previous status as merely a linguistic area within the borders of Travancore-Cochin State and Madras. Its 22,000-square-mile area makes it a little larger than the state of Kansas but its huge population gives it a density of 800 persons to the square mile.

For 20 years the area has been a stronghold of communism which gained strength through years of crop disaster and unending hunger.

In March, 1957, Kerala became the first Communist state within the British Commonwealth.

Ink free elections, the Communists won simply by telling the people that food and clothing could be had by toppling Nehru's Congress Party "reactionaries and stooges of America and Britain" from power.

The Kerala Communists operated within the limits of their paradoxical situation.

They held the office, but the chance.

Chinese Girl Stars Opposite Jimmy Stewart

APACHE TRAIL, Ariz. (AP)—While a host of film makers sweated in the Arizona sun, one member of the movie company remained fresh as a lotus flower.

Her name is Lisa Liu and she has the resplendent look opposite Jimmy Stewart in "The Mountain Road." Her lovely face remained unflushed under her broad conical hat. She viewed the trek of extras up a desert canyon with oriental placidity.

"Don't let that coolness fool you," warned director Danny Mann. "She's a Chinese Magnani," he said, comparing her to Italy's fiery Anna Magnani.

Only that praise brought a blush to Lisa's cheeks.

"The hardest thing for me to do when I started learning to act was to let myself go," she said. "It is entirely against our nature. All Chinese children—and Japanese, too—are taught from early childhood to restrain their emotions."

It was very difficult for her to learn to shout and be angry.

But she learned, and now she is the latest addition to Hollywood's growing list of oriental leading women.

She came out of China in 1947 and settled in Honolulu, where she became a newspaper librarian and covered Chinese society. But the yen to act was strong.

It remained after she came to the mainland to each mandarin at the Army Language School at Monterey, where her husband, Shelling Huang, was also an instructor. She had met director Mann in Hawaii and asked him twice about her ambitions. His reply: study.

So she enrolled at Pasadena Playhouse and started learning how to doff her native reticence.

"Being Chinese is both an advantage and a disadvantage for an actress," she said realistically. "There is less competition for roles, but there are fewer roles."

central government under Nehru controlled the money and the armed forces. Therefore, they operated within the law.

Within the law, a systematic campaign was undertaken against employers, including a denial of police protection in times of Communist-generated strikes and violence. Violence against anti-Communists became a way of life.

The Communists also took over public education and that, along with control of internal security (the police force) gave them the two traditional weapons the Reds always have used to subvert a people.

The present strife arises from a legally recognized Communist attempt to take over selection of teachers for private schools, most of which are religious in character.

Although the call for resistance said it should be non-violent, the dead list is mounting.

The Kerala administration has said it soon may call on the central government for help. If so, it will be a bitter pill for Nehru who makes no secret of his hatred for communism at home nor his dislike for the Kerala regime.

But the New Delhi "statesman" charted his course when he said editorially: The Communists came to power through the ballot box. They will have to be dismissed the same way.

'Rich' Brazil Is Very Near the Poor House

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

Brazil, potentially one of South America's richest nations, once more is struggling desperately to keep out of the poor house.

It was on Aug. 24, 1954, that President Getulio Vargas, for 25 years Brazil's "strong man," retired to his room and fired a bullet into his heart after first writing a bitter last will and testament. In it he said:

"I can give nothing else but my blood. I bequeath my death to the hatred of my enemies. I regret that I was unable to do all I wanted for the humble."

What Vargas had done for "the humble" was to bequeath them today's financial ills.

Since World War II, Brazil has passed through a succession of economic crises, each one more grave than the last.

In the first 10 years after the war, she received some $600 million in American loans. In the last 10 years, prices have risen 1,000 per cent. The Cruzeiro, Brazil's unit of currency, has slipped to a value of only about three-quarters of a U.S. cent.

Coffee Economy Slip

Despite her other riches, Brazil's has been a coffee economy. And its coffee prices slipped so did Brazil's economy.

The single act of the Vargas administration which is blamed for touching off Brazil's vicious inflationary spiral occurred on May 1, 1954. It was a decree doubling minimum wages. Prices, already high, shot skyward.

At almost the same time, Brazil set a minimum price on coffee of 87 cents a pound. Vargas' attempt to extort from world coffee drinkers the price of industrial expansion at home boomeranged.

The coffee market broke and Vargas was dead, leaving behind his bitter legacy.

Vargas, a strongman for 20 years, had become Brazil's legally elected president in 1950.

From the start he courted the working classes, regardless of the effect on the country's economy. He found a willing audience. For in the cities, many lived in misery within sight of riches, and in the rural areas others lacked even the necessities.

Makes Field For Reds

They also provided a fertile field for communism.

There was another set of circumstances which contributed to today's ills, created by leaders who found it politically profitable to promote a questionable sort of nationalism.

It was this that led to Petropolis, Brazil's state-owned oil monopoly in which no foreigners are permitted to hold shares. Brazil is estimated to have enormous oil reserves, yet while petroleum imports soar, her oil lies idle in the ground because Brazil has neither the know-how nor the money to get it out.

Forrest City Man Dies in Crash

WYNNE, Ark. (AP)—Charles H. Johnson, about 48, of Forrest City, was killed yesterday when his cropdusting plane crashed and burst into flames.

Johnson was spraying a field with light crop fertilizer when the crash happened. Witnesses said he had turned the plane for another run over the field when his engine backfired and stopped. The craft plunged into a woods and exploded.

Johnson was flying for the Hickory Ridge Flying Service. He leaves his widow, a son and a daughter.

schek once more is looking for money. It is probable that once more the U.S. will bail him out.

Meanwhile, the basic ills remain uncurbed. The government has shown no disposition to undertake any such drastic "austerity" campaign as has aroused the ire of labor in Argentina and France. It probably could not and remain in office.

State to Open Bids on Printing

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Secretary of State C. O. Hall said yesterday that bids on state printing contracts will be opened at 11 a.m. July 2.

Hall said bids are being asked on 66 contracts, seven more than the state awarded in 1957-58. He attributed the increase to an increase in state agencies and services.

The contracts will be for the period from Jan. 1, 1960, to Dec. 31, 1961. Contracts will include all the state's stationary supplies and changes. Lowest bids tonight. High and advertising brochures.

Bank Robbery Trial Resumed

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP)—A Jackson Circuit Court jury today resumed deliberations in the trial of James T. Gibson, 33, of Jonesboro, who is accused in the $2,900 robbery of the Bank of Tucker, Man. Feb. 3.

The jury had the case for several hours last night before Judge Andrew Ponder excused the pane for the night.

Gibson has entered a plea of insanity. By reason of a plea of insanity, a Memphis psychiatrist testified yesterday that Gibson probably did not know right from wrong at the time of the robbery.

An Arkansas State Hospital official testified earlier, however, that the defendant was sane. Gibson was arrested shortly after the robbery and officers said they found $2,900 and a .45 pistol in his car.

Journey To Love

By VIRGINIA NIELSON

(C) 1959 by Virginia Nielson Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

A policeman, who had apparently been standing on the corner all the time, ran up to her, but there was not much he could do since she could not even tell him whether the thief was a man or a woman.

While she was talking to the policeman, giving him her name and address, Alex drove up in the taxi. Kathie was immensely glad to see him. For the first time, she felt she could definitely eliminate Alex from any suspicion in the things that had been happening to her. If the thief had been after the deed, and not an ordinary purse-snatcher, he certainly hadn't been sent by Alex. With the deed already mailed to him, Alex had no need to try to steal it.

When she had finished answering the policeman's questions, Kathie climbed into the taxi with Alex. He was very grave when she recounted the incident to him. In fact, he took it more seriously than she did.

"I don't like it, Kathie," he said. "Someone's having you watched too closely. Apparently you can't make a move that isn't known. It scares me, darling."

Darling. That precious word again. Kathie turned a radiant face to him. "At least they don't know where the deed is," she told him. "They wouldn't have snatched my purse if they did."

"Do you still want to go to the Poinciana?" Alex asked her. It was then that he hit Kathie—the obvious and naked truth that she had overlooked in her excitement. The Poinciana? That was a laugh!

"Alex," she gasped. "Every cent I have in the world was in that purse. Every single cent!"

Alex leaned forward and gave the driver an address. "It's the best I can think of at the moment," he told Kathie.

"Where are you taking me?" she said through stiff lips.

"To my apartment," he frowned. "I wish I had a home to take you to, Kathie, but Grandfather closed the big house a few years ago and went to live at a downtown hotel. I share a studio with a college friend of mine. There are other relatives, of course, but I can't think of one at the moment I want to entrust you to!" He grinned at her and added reassuringly, "We'll figure something out by tonight."

Kathie's spirits rose a little. She might be alone and without funds in far-off Honolulu, but she was not without friends. They were driving along a pleasant canal lined with attractive modern houses. Before one of a series of triplexes the taxi stopped, and the driver helped Alex carry the luggage up to the third floor.

Kathie looked around her with a feeling of having stepped into a dream. This was Alex' room. A large wicker sofa had covered the floor, and the easy chairs were made of curved bamboo. Split bamboo shades were at the large windows, and the draperies were a splash of tropical colors in large design. The length of one wall was almost completely covered by a low bookcase.

The sleeping quarters apparently were the two bunk beds on opposite sides of the room, tailored in clear, vibrant colors matching the tones in the draperies and massed with pillows. Punces, they called them out here.

"It's beautiful," she said. "So easy and comfortable." "Just right for two bachelors," he said, with his crooked smile. "I'm going to leave you here. Kathie, my roommate won't be home until this evening, and I expect to be back before then. Don't let anyone into the apartment, and don't go out. Will you promise me that, Kathie?"

"Yes."

"Good girl." To her intense surprise, he bent and brushed her lips with a light kiss. "And don't worry," he said. "We'll get your money back."

For the second time that day, Kathie's eyes filled. "Alex, you're so nice," she said unsteadily. "I am sorry I was so horrible on the ship. I know you didn't go through my luggage."

The smile he gave her was dazzling. Quickly, impulsively, he kissed her again. Then he hurried away, leaving Kathie with stars in her eyes.

When she became hungry, she went into the kitchenette and opened the refrigerator. There were milk and cheese and eggs. She prepared a light lunch, hoping that Alex would return in time to share it with her. But he didn't come.

She ate alone, then washed up the few dishes, pretending happily that it was her own kitchen. Afterward, she curled up with the book of poetry she found on a shelf. One ear heard each line she read in Alex's voice, the other listening for his step on the stairs.

When at last he came back, his roommate with him, they found Kathie fast asleep.

Alex introduced his roommate, but Kathie was still half-asleep and never did hear more than "John." They were carrying groceries, and John went into the kitchenette, promising to "whip up a steak."

Alex sat down on the punce beside Kathie. With apprehension, she saw that his smile did not quite reach his eyes.

"What is it, Alex? What's happened?"

"Your hunch was apparently right about Bea. I have sources in the police department, you know. This is strictly unofficial and not for publication yet, but the police are working on something that they think will show Bea's accident was not entirely accidental."

tion to shut off negotiations, saying the one-year Soviet time limit or a solution to the Berlin dispute can be discussed. He denied the time limit was a ultimatum. The Khrushchev speech, Western diplomats said, was clearly timed for the opening of today's Big Four session at Gromyko's villa.

Khrushchev had conferred with East German leaders in Moscow and kept silent—until today.

Then, less than 30 minutes before the Geneva talks were to resume, Moscow radio began broadcasting a Khrushchev speech saying the Soviet Union would sign a separate peace treaty "if the West continued to hinder the settlement of the German question."

He also said control of communications to West Berlin under a peace treaty would pass into the hands of East Germans "as representatives of a sovereign state" and not as agents of the Soviet Union.

The heart of the Western plan is a provision for continuing the Allied occupation of West Berlin. The heart of Soviet opposition is that the occupation status must be ended.

Khrushchev again emphasized his interest in going to one or more summit conferences.

Miss Universe Selection Made

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — Donna Sue Needham, a brown-haired, Berryville lass who already owns a string of beauty titles, last night was named Arkansas' representative to the Miss Universe Contest.

State Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello crowned the 19-year-old University of Arkansas sophomore, at the climax of the Arkansas Miss Universe Pageant, held at the Evans Oil of Brinkley, which was run by Lela Jean Bever.

ceptable to the West. But though the Big Four foreign ministers' conference obviously was in its closing stages, anything short of an outright Soviet rejection was almost certain to set off a new burst of negotiations.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has criticized the Western proposal because it failed to provide for an end to the U.S. British-French occupation of West Berlin.

He was expected to demand a time limit on the Western occupation at a secret session of the foreign ministers' this afternoon at his villa. The West has said it will end the occupation when Germany is reunified.

Speaking to visiting East German Communist leaders, Khrushchev said: "The Soviet Union regrets that the Western powers do not want to sign a peace treaty, that nothing will hinder the Soviet Union from signing a treaty with the German Democratic Republic, but the West should understand the purpose."

When such a treaty is signed, he said, it will mean the end of the occupation of East Germany's territory.

"If attempts would be made by force to maintain the occupation by force, the Soviet Union would support the G. D. R. with all means at its disposal, and would defend the G. D. R. as an ally of the Warsaw Pact," he said.

Some people in the West, he went on, have "the illusion that conditions would remain the same after the peace treaty, and that communications with Berlin would remain."

"But what foundation is there for this?"

"Any control of communications would be carried out by G.D.R. personnel as representatives of a sovereign state and not, as the West says, as representatives of the Soviet Union."

A Bad-Tempered Brat Asks to Be Believed

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I'm the oldest of four children and, instead of accepting the responsibility that goes with the rank, I've always resented the fact that I had to do more than my younger sisters and brother. I'm afraid I must admit that I've been a nasty brat. I'm 18, allowed generous dating privileges and really haven't much to complain about. Mother has been ill for several years and Dad is constantly worrying about her. I guess I don't help any. I have said many nasty things to them that I sometimes regret. However, by this time they don't believe me when I say I'm sorry. We have many arguments, they tell me to grow up, but when we're in the midst of a hassle I don't get very mature. My parents never believe me when I tell them where I'm going. I go to church regularly and ask GOD to help me get along better with my folks but we're having a hard time. —Toots

Fair Trade Laws Do Not Protect The Inefficient

Opponents of fair-trade proclaim that small businessmen — and we're proud to number ourselves among this group — want these laws to protect the inefficient.

We protest! We don't consider ourselves inefficient. The kind of service we have rendered to the community for these long years will attest to that fact.

Fair trade provides for fair play in the market place. It makes it impossible for price-cutters to destroy small businessmen. Remember, this! No one ever existed in business by giving his profits away.

Price-cutters one way or another make up the profits every businessman needs to stay in business.

Bible Comment

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The great, outstanding ones of the Bible are undoubtedly the named ones, whose names from the Bible have been in the household names in successive generations all the many of the Old and the New Testaments.
But here and there in the Bible are the unnamed ones, the "certain man" and "certain woman." Despite their namelessness, they had a very important part in character and action and a not table part in determining the course of events.
To me there has always been a sort of fascinated interest in the "certain man" (I Kings 22:34) who "drew a bow at a venture."

It was that arrow, shot at a venture, which fatally wounded Ahab, King of Israel. This was the decided and turning point in the battle in which the evil Ahab, husband of the evil Jezebel, had inveigled, chosaphat, a good man, King of Judah (see Chaps. 17-20 in II Chronicles, into making war against Syria and apparently without any just cause.
As to the "certain man," I have a faint recollection of once having preached on the incident—a simple sermon in three parts:

1. He was on the right side.
2. He was facing the right way.
3. He did what he could, even if the mark wasn't clear. It is a suggestion of what anyone of us in the battle of life might accomplish if we fulfilled those three conditions.

If there were a "runner up" to the "certain man" who unknowingly killed King Ahab, I think it would be the "certain woman" (Judges 9:53) who caused the death of the rascally Abimelech, son of the famous Gideon. When he took a place called Thebez the inhabitants took refuge in a strong tower. When Abimelech came to the door to burn it, the "certain woman" from the roof "cast an upper millstone" upon his head and broke his skull.
The disgrace of being killed by a woman would have been too much. He had his armor-bearer draw his sword and finish him off.

The physical and warlike actions of the "weaker sex" perhaps have an unusual interest for me because of an apparently vigorous grandmother. Before my four grandparents left Ireland for Canada in the "Hungry Thirties" of the last century, they were involved in the feuds between Orange and Green. My Grandfather and Grandmother Gilroy were attacked by three thugs, but when they were going to be killed, one of them stepped forward and said, "This is a good man, who has never done us wrong."
It was different when my Grandfather and Grandmother Elms were similarly attacked. As grandmother told the story: "Jack (my grandfather) knocked one down with his fist. I leveled another with a stone, and the third took to his heels."
Grandmother Gilroy had courage after the fact, but when she'd start to renege me with stories of the fights, my grandfather would get very angry, for a peaceful man. "Don't be putting such notions in the child's mind," he'd say. God bless him. I wish the religious world had more like him—men with strong

Has Doggonedest Time With Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Policeman Kenneth Shipp had the doggonedest time fighting a grass fire Wednesday.
He hastily reported the blaze after spotting it heading for a large wooden house. In the back yard, he found about 50 dogs in kennels. He freed them and heaved each one over the fence to safety.
The ship found the house full of dogs in kennels. More than 100, he estimated. It took him 15 minutes to empty the building.
After the fire was out, Shipp rounded up all the dogs. He never did learn the name of the kennel owner. Didn't have time.

Plan to Join 2 Protestant Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A constitution designed to unify two Protestant denominations was released today. It provides for regulation at the top and freedom at the bottom.
The document, proposed for the new United Church of Christ, has been a matter of keen interest in setting forth a joint structure for the two bodies—the loosely knit Congregational Christian churches and the centrally organized Evangelical and Reformed Church—it combines elements of both.

It guarantees the autonomy of any congregation or local church in the management of its own affairs—including property worship and hiring or dismissal of pastors. This has been a crucial point for the Congregationalists, some of whom have opposed the merger on the ground it might impair their traditional independence.
The constitution was drafted by a 30-member commission, headed by the Rev. Dr. Gerhard W. Grauer of Chicago.
It was mailed to delegates in advance of the United Church's forthcoming general synod July 5-9 at Oberlin, Ohio, so they would have it in hand by the time it was made public today.
It must be approved by that meeting, and then by two-thirds of the Evangelical and Reformed regional synods, and two-thirds of the individual Congregational churches voting to become effective.

Together, the two denominations include more than two million members.
The constitution specifies that its provisions define and regulate the national church functions, but only describe the free and voluntary relationships of the local churches and regional groups.
Thus, in general, the traditional Evangelical and Reformed system is applied in the upper church echelons, while the customary Congregational freedoms are retained at the lower level.

Church Plans Big for Kids in Summer

By LOUIS CASSELLS
United Press International

Gone are the days when the beginning of summer marked the end of organized church programs for children.
Today the situation is just the reverse. Instead of lapsing into vacation doldrums after Memorial Day, churches now find the summer months as their greatest opportunity for Christian teaching.
This summer, about three-fourths of the nation's Protestant churches will conduct vacation church schools. The total enrollment probably will exceed 8 million children.

Most vacation church schools begin in June, soon after the public schools close. The typical school operates from 9 a. m. until noon, Monday through Friday, with a two week period. But the program has proved so popular with children and parents that some churches have lengthened the term to four weeks.

Appeals To Youngsters
A good vacation church school is designed to appeal to young people of every age bracket from pre-kindergarten to high school. Bible study and worship are interspersed with play periods, handicrafts, and group activities. Each class has its own special project. A kindergarten group, for example, may build and furnish a model church of cardboard, while a junior high group rehearses and stages a play.

Some church leaders are convinced that children receive more effective religious education in two weeks of vacation school than in a whole year of Sunday school.
They point out that the average Sunday school class period is from 30 to 45 minutes long. Just as the teacher is getting into subject, the bell rings and further instruction has to be postponed until a week later.
In vacation schools, teachers are not faced with such severe time limitations.
Even more ideal conditions or religious training are offered by church-sponsored summer camps. Here children can be brought into a happy, healthful and distinctly Christian environment for 24 hours a day. With the right kind of leadership and program, a church camp can become a place where young people not only learn about but live Christian principles.

Growing in Popularity
Although church camping is still on a fairly small scale, compared to vacation church schools, it is rapidly growing in popularity. Last year there were about 7,000 church camps in this country with a total attendance of more than 700,000 young people. Church leaders look for an increase of about 15 per cent in the number of camps and campers this summer.
In addition to these live-in camps, many churches are now sponsoring day camps on the outskirts of cities. Buses transport the children to camp in the morning and home again at night.

Another new development which seems to be catching hold in many areas is the "family retreat," which parents and children spend a week end or a full week together at a church camp.
